

Dedication

This issue of the Journal of Space Philosophy is dedicated to the exponentially advancing global Space missions and projects by global governments and commercial Space companies over the past year in the face of the tragic outcomes of the COVID-19 pandemic. These remarkable science and technology achievements have given Earth's humanity the confidence that Earth's humans have the innovative intelligence to maintain progress despite serious challenges.

Bob Krone and Gordon Arthur